Food Business Notification Form?

Food businesses must, before starting food handling operations, notify the appropriate enforcement agency of their existence by lodging a completed Food Business Notification (FBN) form. In SA, the appropriate enforcement agency is the local council or local authority.

This food business notification form is designed for a single business location. Where a food business sells food from multiple locations a separate form must be completed for each location.

If a food business does not notify the appropriate enforcement agency before starting, penalties and/or expiation fees under Section 86 of the Food Act 2001 may be applied.
